National School Lunch Week 2005 October 10-14, 2005

School Lunch is instrumental in keeping a child's mind and body going for the remainder of the day. "School Lunch – It's Instrumental" is this year's theme for National School Lunch Week. Serving a well-balanced lunch to children means more than the food itself. It is part of a child's education and can be a cornerstone to learning in school. Invite your students and community to share in National School Lunch Week. Trumpet to your community and serenade your students about the importance of school lunch during the week of October 10-14, 2005.

School Breakfast Week is March 6-10, 2006. The theme is to be announced.

Two New Food Safety Provisions

The Child Nutrition and WIC Reauthorization Act of 2004, Public Law 108-265, Section 111, included a new sanitation provision requiring an increase of food safety inspections from one to two inspections yearly.

Section 111 also requires that schools comply with the Hazard Analysis of Critical Control Points (HACCP) system for food handling and safety. For more information, including a copy of the HACCP Manager Self-Inspection Checklist, go to <http://www.schoolmeals.nal.usda.gov/Safety/FNSFoodSafety.htm#CNP>.

Select Training Lessons and then click on Serving It Safe, 2nd Edition, A Manager's Tool Kit and HACCP Checklist.

Feeding Children in the Summer

There are three options for feeding children in the summer: the National School Lunch Program (NSLP) and School Breakfast Program (SBP); the Seamless Summer Feeding Option; and the Summer Food Service Program. For more information, visit our Web site: <http://www.dese.mo.gov/divadm/food/> and select Feeding Children in the Summer.

Record Keeping for the School Meals Initiative: Nutrition Facts Labels and Child Nutrition Labels

Q: What is the School Meals Initiative (SMI)?

A: The Healthy Meals for Healthy Americans Act of 1994 requires that meals served under the National School Lunch Program (NSLP) and School Breakfast Program (SBP) meet the Dietary Guidelines for Americans. In 1995, the Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) of USDA initiated the School Meals Initiative for Healthy Children, which defines how the Dietary Guidelines for Americans and other specified nutrient standards apply to school meals.

Q: What are nutrient standards?

A: Nutrient standards are the minimal nutritional goals by age/grade groups that a school district must meet, when averaged over a school week, for students age 2 years and older. They are based on the Recommended Dietary Allowances (RDA) for specified nutrients, children's calorie (energy) requirements, and the recommendations from the 1995 Dietary Guidelines for Americans. School lunch should provide one-third of the RDA, while one-fourth of the RDA should be provided by school breakfast.

Q: How is compliance measured for different menu planning options in schools?

A: LEAs are responsible for collecting and maintaining the necessary information to conduct its own nutrition evaluation (under Nutrient Standard Menu Planning options) or to allow the State Agency to evaluate the nutritional integrity of the LEAs menus (under Food Based Menu Planning options).

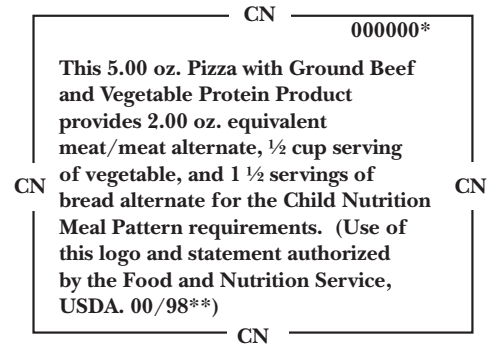

Q: What information is necessary to conduct an analysis of menus?

A: The necessary information schools must collect varies with each menu planning option.

Under Nutrient Standard Menu Planning, schools are required to keep the following records:

- Nutrition Facts Labels
See the FDA Web site under How to Understand Nutrition Facts Labels:
<http://www.cfsan.fda.gov/~dms/foodlab.html>
- Standardized Recipes
See the DESE School Food Services Web site:

Local Wellness Policy

Recognizing the role schools can play in combating problems associated with poor nutrition and inactivity, Congress included in the Child Nutrition and WIC Reauthorization Act of 2004 a requirement that each Local Educational Agency (LEA) participating in a program authorized by the National School Lunch Act or the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 establish a local wellness policy by the beginning of the 2006-2007 school year.

At a minimum, the school wellness policy must:

- Include goals for nutrition education, physical activity, and other school-based activities designed to promote student wellness;
- Include nutrition guidelines for all foods available on the school campus during the school day;
- Provide an assurance that guidelines for school meals are no less restrictive than those set by the Secretary of USDA;
- Establish a plan for measuring implementation of the local wellness policy and;
- Involve parents, students, and representatives of the LEA, the school board, school administrators, and the public in development of the local wellness policy.

For more information and assistance with developing a local wellness policy, log onto USDA's Team Nutrition Web site at <http://www.fns.usda.gov/tn>. For additional resources and sample policies, go to the School Nutrition Association (SNA, formally ASFSA) Web site at <http://www.asfsa.org>, and the National Alliance for Nutrition and Activity (NANA) Web site at <http://www.schoolwellnesspolicies.org/>.
